

SAFE CARE . . . QUALITY CARE

Our caregivers are selected because of their genuine concern for the welfare of the elderly. They are also carefully screened. Each caregiver has passed a criminal background check, has been tested for illegal drug use, has passed a DMV check and has been finger printed. They are also bonded and insured. You can feel safe and secure knowing that your loved one is being cared for by someone who is fully qualified to provide the highest quality in-home care.

To continuously improve our quality of care, caregivers receive rigorous competency-based training in four key areas — Personal Care, Home Services, Health Services, and Quality of Life.

Caregiver training takes place in small workshops where they learn how to correctly and consistently deliver over 50 different services. At the completion of training, each caregiver is required to demonstrate skills mastery by passing a competency-based exam.

As a result of our continuous training and testing programs, you can feel confident that the care you receive will be of the highest quality. It will also be consistent from caregiver to caregiver.

WHAT DO STRESS, DEPRESSION AND ANGER HAVE IN COMMON?

*Those Are the Emotions Felt
Most Often By Family Care Givers.*

WE CAN HELP.

DANVILLE
Support Services

Dear Friend

If you are the primary caregiver for an elderly or disabled parent or spouse, it's perfectly normal to feel stressed, depressed and even angry at times. If you are like many family caregivers you are also feeling overwhelmed and exhausted. It's not your fault for feeling this way, it's actually quite normal. Caring for an elderly or disabled person is hard work—physically, mentally and emotionally.

My name is Stephanie Strohl, I am the administrator of Danville Support Services. We are a leading provider of in-home, non-medical support services for the elderly and the disabled. We do something very unique in that we deliver a welcome release from the constant demands of being a primary caregiver. How? By providing in-home, non-medical support services for your loved one.

YOUR HOME OR A REST HOME?

Moving a parent out of the family home and into a rest home is an agonizing decision. It weighs heavily on your mind. Even though you are released from the day-to-day burden of caring for your parent, a nursing home environment may not be the best thing for them.

Being pulled out of familiar surroundings and dropped into a strange and unfamiliar environment can be traumatizing for an elderly person. In some cases it may actually accelerate physical and mental deterioration. I have observed many people in rest homes that could have been well cared for in their own homes, had the proper support services been available.

Experienced caregivers provide a variety of in-home supports.

ADVICE TO FAMILY CAREGIVERS

If you are like most adult children I talk to, you are willing to go to extensive lengths to care for an elderly parent.

Coming to the realization that you can't possibly do it alone and that you need help does not mean that you have failed. It simply means that you recognize that providing adequate care for your loved one requires much more than you are personally capable of giving.

HELP IS HERE

Danville Support Services works with you to design and implement an in-home care system that relieves your stress. Our system has three objectives: First, to fully understand your unique needs. Second: to place the right caregiver or caregivers in your home. And third: to follow up continuously to insure that the needs of you and your loved one are fully met.

HERE'S WHAT OUR CLIENTS HAVE TO SAY

"Thanks so much for making such a difference in my mom's and my family's life. You are great!"

– Jim Doilney

"I know that Danville was an answer to our prayers for help. We can stay in our home. Cheryl is efficient, cheerful and everything she has done has been so helpful."

– Bernie Gerhing

"Your organization was so helpful and so sensitive to our needs. I am grateful that my mother was able to pass away in her home because she seemed so content and comfortable. I would recommend your services to anyone"

– Amanda Peterson
